Jeremy Brockmann and Aaron Thomas earned spots on the All-Washington Academic Team for their scholastic performance at Centralia College.

They, along with several other students from around the state, received medals of recognition at a special ceremony featuring Gov. Jay Inslee at South Puget Sound Community College on March 26.

The All-Washington Academic Team program recognizes the state's community and technical college students who are high academic achievers. Students on the team are eligible for the All-USA Academic Team.

Key Bank gave each student a $250 scholarship.

Their position on the Academic Teams also makes students eligible for more scholarships from whichever university they choose to attend.
