The Chicago Boyz Acrobatic Team, semifinalists on "America's Got Talent," will perform at Centralia College's Corbet Theatre at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 28.

Tickets to this acrobatic act are now available in the Student Center, Room 101, for $8 for Centralia College students and $10 for general admission. This show is sponsored by the Associated Students of Centralia College.

Featuring talented young men and boys from the Chicago area, this professional gymnastics troupe's performance includes catapulting off mini trampolines, performing acrobatic stunts and tricks inside twirling jump ropes, and executing tumbling routines.

Founded by professional gymnast Tim Shaw in 1999, the troupe recruits inner-city youth and offers them a better alternative to gangs, drugs, alcohol or tobacco.

They are rigorously trained not only in gymnastics, but in discipline, respect, hard work, integrity and teamwork. They also are required to stay in school. Many of the boys have turned their lives around, thanks to Shaw's positive impact.
